Oratory primary school uniform

Ultra. F/Photodisc/Getty Images It is important for certain schools that students wear a school uniform to maintain order among them. School uniforms are common in religious and private schools, and some public schools require them. Attendance and academic success According to a 2005 study, the researchers found that the Ohio School, which recently implemented a single policy, saw an increase in attendance as well as the total number of graduates for the 2005 school year. There are also cases of fewer suspensions in schools that require students to wear uniforms or adhere to a strict dress code. The general belief is that because all students wear uniforms, there are fewer distractions in classrooms that worry about what they and others are wearing. School uniforms also help boost morale and school spirit, as students are dressed together their school colors. They seem more united, which in turn creates a sense of community and cohesion, while reducing the sense of competition. Efficiency and students who wear uniform at school spend much less time preparing in the morning than students who do not wear uniforms. They should not spend time thinking about what to wear or having to try on several different outfits. This allows some students to get more sleep as they can wake up later in the morning knowing they don't have to spend as much time getting dressed. They are also more likely to have time to eat a nutritious breakfast before school, giving them the energy they need to focus more in class. School uniforms can also reduce the cost of clothing for parents. Students who attend schools without a single policy may be more concerned with wearing stylish or expensive clothing. Parents of students attending school with the same policy spend up to $150 less on clothing each year, according to the National Federation of Retailers. Uniforms of harassment and violence help eliminate bullying due to the fact that everyone is dressed the same and children cannot be annoyed about wearing unusual or different. Uniforms can create an environment of equality, as students from different economic backgrounds wear the same clothing, which can reduce the harassment of those who cannot afford stylish or expensive clothes. School uniforms allow easy identification of school offenders, which is extremely important in a world of school shootings. Similarly, if the student is kidnapped or leaves school at an unauthorized time, they can be more easily identified by the authorities if they wear a school uniform. Arguments against school uniforms Some people argue that they should wear uniforms because it violates their rights to self-expression. They believe that students should be able to express their individuality and creativity by dress in the way they want. Some parents also feel they have to pay for the uniforms, contrary to their right to School. They believe that uniforms impose additional costs, which they should not insist to provide their child with a free education. They argue that school uniforms actually create a greater target for bullying, as students from other schools easily take students off in uniform. Some students may also feel resentful of their school for making them wear a uniform, which can cause behavioral problems that don't usually exist in schools where uniforms are optional. Children lose some of their individuality by having to dress in the same way as everyone else. School uniforms make children give up their identity. Clothing allows a person to show a unique part of himself. Uniforms do not allow them to show what they like or who they really are. Also, uniforms are not cheap. If the parents of the child can not afford more than a couple, they will have to constantly wash. Most uniforms need to be ironed and hung to avoid wrinkles. This adds unnecessary stress to parents.
